"I am unalterably opposed to the idea of auctioning off newsstands to the highest bidder and will fight to the last ditch against the adoption of that scheme. It is unfair, uneconomic, unbusinesslike and paradoxi-

New York has no moral right to take away from hundreds of otherwise helpiess men and women, businesses which it has taken them years of toll to establish. These standholders have struggled in summer heat and in the cold of winter to establish themselves. Now that they have succeeded in reaching that point where they al-ways look forward to a decent living. nave we the right to oust them? Is the good will of their caling worth mothing to them? Are we to throw them into the street with nothing to look forward to—keeping in mind the fact that many of them are infirm through years or boddiy inflictions?

"The License Commissioner's plan is unecohomic, unbusinesslike and paradoxical because it does not tell is what we are to do with the hunireds who would likely be made help-less if they lost their old stands on the auction block. Commissioner Bell says the city would probably gain about $200,000 a year in revenue if the stands were auctioned. I contend that it would lose more than that caring for ousted standbolders as charity charges. If the great City of New York deprived these men and somen of their only means of a live. women of their only means of a live-ihood and they cannot get work else-where, it would be our bounden duty o support them in institutions or therwise. So you see the highest idder scheme would develop on the conomic scale of a penny wise and economic scale of a penny wise and pound foolish.

"It is not my intention to criticise Mr. Bell, for I think his plan is arompted by the fairest and best motives. But I believe he will eventually realize that it is not practical," Boyough President Marks said:
"I do not think License Commissioner Bell's plan will do at all. At least, I shall oppose it. There isn't the slightest doubt but what persons far less worthy of the stand privileges than their present holders would gain possession of them if these privileges were nuctioned off. And when leges were nuctioned off. And when the present standholders are outsted, as a great many of them likely would be if individuals or corporations with more cash bid against them, what would they do? What could they would they do? What could they turn their hands to? Most of them rould be helpless-public charges. If we are to try to save money, there are ways more businesslike and far victor Ridder, Chairman of a committee of the Publishers' Association investigating the newsstand situation, believes that there are stands which should pay more revenue to the city. But he is against the sweeping plan to auction off stands indisciplinately.

To-morrow the affidavits on the Sussex case are expected. These are important only as "exhibits" in the case. The President is expected to be ready with his reply early next week. There will be a delay only in event that certain information asked on the Patria and other recent instances of U-bont operations is slow in arriving. Three or four days at the most should find this country's position determined finally, officials declare.

In the past this Government has taken the position that arbitration of questions in which American lives were concerned would not be considered. To-day it was said by officials that German's suggestion for arbitration was definitely answered in the President's previous attitude.
